SERVICES

Hotel Supplies Fit-Out- joinery - Supply

Procurement Services & Project Management Strongest Product Warranty

- Detailed line-item budgeting
- Model Room Preparation
- Project scheduling
- Sourcing Power
- Freight Management
- On-site FF&E/OS&E project management
- FF&E/OS&E installation

Our team of experts are ready to help whatever our client's requirements, opening or refurbishing a small restaurant to a large hotel can be very challenging that's why our team are here to help and make the whole operation easier. Our team specializing in the management of the entire project and we are positioned to help our clients ensure that their furniture, fixtures and equipment (FF&E) and operating supplies & equipment (OS&E) are handled, delivered and installed when they are needed and the way it's needed.

How do we work?

Our services usually start with creating a detailed, itemized budget so all parties know the specifics of each item from initial specification to purchase order. When bidding for products, we identify the right sources at the appropriate quality level of the project to obtain the best possible pricing.

We then coordinate the sampling, approval, and expedite the process typically in short time frames to prepare the model room for review. In order to reduce risks, we do quality checks by utilizing qualified 3rd party inspectors directly at the manufacturer before any shipments are made.

Working with installation experts, TRTC the receipt, redelivery, staging, and installation of all FF&E and OS&E. We appoint an experienced project manager 24/7 to every project we take on board, ensuring that our projects are executed within the critical time schedule.

We put highest importance on rigid quality control of our products on-site in the manufacturing countries. Therefore, with a product guarantee of our product warranty is the strongest in the industry.

FF&E Consulting

We maximize value at the design stage

- Reviewing design specifications
- Advising on product suitability & alternatives
- Value engineering

To us value-engineering means to save more costs for our clients instead of adding additional fees to the project. In short, we basically pay ourselves through cost savings and add value to our clients' investment on top of this.

When getting involved in a project during the design stage, our insight can save significant time in the budgeting process by helping the designer to specify sources that meet both, the design and operational requirements as well as the budget from the first specification. Our focus is to optimize project costs or tailor budget to our Client's requirements.

Projects

We are encouraged to see in this year’s Pulse of the Profession® that organizations are making progress—significant progress—as they are experiencing more success with implementing initiatives.

we see that more projects are meeting original goals and being completed within budget.

We have long advocated that project management is essential for any organization’s success, and are excited that others increasingly realize this fact as well.

That is particularly good news because when organizations embark on projects and programs, they do so with a clear mission: to add value, advance strategies, and increase competitive advantage. So, the more mature they are with project management, the more likely they will achieve their goals. There is, however, still more work to be done.

Completing projects and programs successfully—on time, on budget, meeting goals—is essential. But just as important is a focus on expected business benefits. A broader view of performance includes an organization’s benefits realization maturity level. This more—inclusive measure of project success provides insight into what elite organizations those we are calling “champions”—are doing and how others can continue this path to progress.

As you consider your organization’s goals, we strongly encourage you to continue making significant growth and progress.

Be champions for the profession, and let’s do great things together
